Darlene Greenlee interviews Dr. Harold Kaplan, a health care lawyer, on the subject of rationing health care. he is also a former hospital administrator. He talks about the other countries in the world that "ration" health care where the elderly is concerned. Often, if facilities are limited, and two patients (one elderly, and one young) are in need of care, the younger patient would be considered a lesser risk and therefore would recieve the treatment in stead of the elderly one. He talks about the U.S. system of health care as the most regulated industry in the country. Numerous laws prohibit hospitals from turning away needy cases from the emergency room.

Carlton Pearson moderates a panel discussion on the smoking hazard, public health vs. personal freedom. Panelists: Ahron Leightman from "Citizens Against Tobacco Smoke"; Dr. Alvin Smith, Aemrican Cancer Society; Smith and Leightman tell of the hazards of smoking to smokers and also those exposed to the smoke. They mention the powerful tobacco lobby fighting for rights for the smokers. They list some of the dangerous chemicals in the tobacco. The promotion of the tobacco industry in advertising a positive image of the smoker influences the young to start smoking despite all information of its harm. They urge the public to organize and push laws prohibiting smoking in public places.

In the three above listed programs, Dr. Donald Whitaker discusses cholesterol and coronary heart disease with Dr. W.V. Esler, internalist specializing in occupational preventative medicine in Amarillo, Texas. They give details on the level of cholesterol healthy individuals should maintain, discuss ways to prevent heart disease, to improve one's High Density Lipo-proteins and Low-Density Lipo-proteins, the latter being the culprit in elevated cholesterol in arteries. They recommend walking as a good form of exercise.

Dr. Whitaker interviews Leta Needles, 97 years old. She shares some of the reasons she has maintained good health. Her first rule is to not eat junk food. Another rule is to eat plenty of fruits and vegetables. She works with puzzles to keep her mind active. She admonishes the elderly to keep active in both mind and body, and that it is never too late to start eating properly.

Jim McClellan interviews Gladys Lindberg and her daughter Judy McFarland. Lindberg, founder of "Living Nutritional Center" and McFarland, author of Take Charge Of Your Health, discuss with Jim some health problems and ways they feel they can be alleviated. They focus on arthritis treatments, diet, and exercise that can alleviate much of the pain. They recommend niacin as a needed vitamin to help release cortisone which is created by the glands.

The 700 Club 0802-88

N PA/O 08-02-88 3:00 pm 59:30

Pat Robertson introduces a feature on smoking. In view of the fact that 350,000 deaths result annually from smoking, the nation has become more concerned. Ty Bragg reports on the tobacco industry, its protection by the government since it is valued as a high cash crop, and also receives subsidies by the government. Studies show that there is 20% less absenteeism with non-smokers, 50% reduction in cleaning costs, 50% furniture replacement, and 75% less disability payments. The surgeon General calls it the most addictive drug in society.

Pat Robertson interviews James Scala, nutritionist and author of The Vitamin Connection and Arthritis Relief. Dr. Scala emphasizes the importance of getting enough fiber in one's diet. He points out that the soft fiber in oat bran is much more valuable than wheat bran. The benefit of such fiber is that it finds the fat and other carcinogens and carries them out of the system. He warns against eating heavily laden fat foods, and encourages avoidance of sugar laden foods as prepared by dried cereals.

tion of them result in depression, fatigue, as well as being a contributing factor in heart disease and other diseases. Author of The Hidden Addiction: How To Get Free, Phelps contends that babies gradually grow into an addiction to sugar simply from the diet given them. Sugar, caffeine and white flour deplete the vitamin source, resulting in various types of abnormal reactions, such as depression, anxieties, anger, irritability, and nervousness. Such emotions contribute to heart disease, arthritis, and cancer.

Michael Little interviews Dr. David Bell and they discuss a mysterious malady which, until more definitely identified, is being called, "Chronic Fatigue Syndrome" (CFS). Cynthia Glasser reports that CFS is plaguing thousands world-wide. One identified virus is the Epstein-Barr virus. Dr. Gerhard Kruger of the Immunopathology Laboratory at the University of Cologne says there is a very large number of patients compared to similar ailments. There seems to be a problem with the immune system. Symptoms are weakness, fever, joint pain, and fatigue. Treatment is rest and nutrition, some medication to control symptoms.

Carlton Pearson hosts a discussion on the connection between the drought and the Greenhouse Effect. Guests: Dr. John Parker, Director of Environmental Studies at Florida International University, and Leo Mayer, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Economics for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington D.C. They discuss the possibility of the record drought being just one of the many outcomes of a larger matter called the Greenhouse Effect. With the Greenhouse Effect, carbon dioxide and chlorofluorocarbons form a blanket over the atmosphere preventing infrared radiation from leaving the atmosphere. Over a decade ago, scientists predicted a massive drought as a result of the Greenhouse Effect. However, nothing definitively says that the current drought is in fact caused by the Greenhouse theory. That notion remains just a theory, but even the Greenhouse Effect is just "a theory", even though we are experiencing some very real consequences. Mr. Mayer gives some information on the economic effects of the drought, not just on the farmer, but on the consumer as well.

Pat Robertson introduces a special report by Janet Boyd on the status of social security and what can be expected in the future. Although social security is in the black, she points out that in forty years, the fund will be going into the red. One of the factors that contribute to this is, according to Merton Bernstein, professor of law at Washington University, illegal aliens add to the work force, but the smaller work force who pay taxes will reduce the surplus quickly. Pat interviews Dorcas Hardy, the Commissioner of the Social Security Commission, says the surplus is not really a surplus, but a reserve for disability, old age, and survivor funds.

She enjoyed a huge popularity there. However, Leigh became a drug abuser. She got so caught up into drugs that she took barbituates at night and amphetamines in the day. Eventually, she tried to commit suicide. She thanks God that she had a drama teacher that would boldly witness to her and the entire class, thinking their salvation of more importance than her job at the University.

Bob, a recovering alcoholic, now sober for 15 years, tells how alcohol ruined his life and his marriage, but God intervened and salvaged both. Bartosch considers alcoholism a disease from which a person must be delivered. "Overcomers Anonymous" is made up of groups of people who struggle with alcohol and its results, either in themselves or their families. They find that the camaraderie they experience helps give courage in facing and overcoming their problems.

The crimes he is familiar with are fraud, armed robbery and shoplifting. Hundreds of thousands of dollars of merchandise is stolen annually. One contributing factor to the high incidence of such crime is that people don't believe they will be victimized. Jan and Paul Crouch interview Dr. Don Whitaker, physician and nutritionist. Dr. Whitaker, after recognizing the high incidence of heart disease and cancer, contends that diet is probably the greatest culprit. The use of fats, often unnoticed by the public, is considered the cause. Dr. Whitaker warns against the use of hydrogenated oils which are in processed foods such as cereals, snack crackers, margarine. He feels that more careful scrutiny of the foods one eats, less red meat consumpiton, but eating more of vegetables, fruits, and whole grains, can contribute greatly to the health of the American people.

in the schools have risen dramatically with an alarming rise in suicides, drug abuse, alcohol abuse, and teenage pregnancy. Such conditions tend to lower moral, as well as SAT scores of the entire student body. Barton points out that sexually transmitted diseases have increased

Our ninth graders are well below other industrialized countries, and our high school seniors are worse in math than 18 industrialized nations. Research is now revealing that the disintegration of the family and the lack of a stabilizing family structure results in poor performance of the children. Gary Bauer, President of Family Research Council cites the Vietnamese boatchildren as a good example of successful students as a result of the parents' teaching of hard work and respect for authority. Patrick Fagan, Senior Vice president of Free Congress Foundation says that parents are alienated by educational philosophies espoused by the schools, introduced by John Dewey who ignored home and family, and stressed freedom in his exhaustive work Democracy In Education. William Bennett, former Secretary of Education says the bonding between parent and child is critical.
